most men know it to be true. May many, all years to come find us as closely united - and if our poor mites can add anything to your coming years be sure the richest & most sincere are yours -

Your kind sympathy with and appreciation of my Anne has always been dear to me, & to tell you the truth, out of hearing, that part of your letter which related to her, was the only part free from exaggeration.

Gratefully & affectionately
Yours

Many thanks, Dear friends, for your yesterdays kind & loving note, and for all the expressions of regard & affection it brought us. It was our only new years gift & we shall prize it as a rich one. The only mistake was in your thinking too much for them are nothing, of our slight attempts by words or otherwise to testify how much you are to us, and how deeply we are & always must be your debtors for light on our pathway, and no live to duty. They ought & would have been more but that we know that your generous devotedness to the cause takes anything done for that as better than if done for yourselves.

Though differing on some points, we are glad to have been always together in action - that our slightly different paths lead always to the same point.

I owe you, Dear Garrison, more than you would let me express - &, my mother & wife except, more than to any other one. Since within the sphere of your influence I trust I have tried a better man. I rejoice to say this here, because the very intimacy of our relation has always made me delicate of saying it in public - though I am glad to feel that
